Justice and Policing Studies

Adelaide City Campus

Justice and Policing Studies TAFE SA (Justice and Policing Studies), with over 1500 students a year, is the largest provider of policing, justice and investigation training in South Australia. Training offered leads to qualifications in Policing, Justice Administration, Security, Investigation and Statutory Compliance, Legal Services and Local Government.

Justice and Policing Studies has fifteen full-time and forty part-time lecturers with extensive experience in the areas of policing, law, investigation, private security and local government. In addition to providing public education, clients of Justice and Policing Studies include the South Australia Police, state and federal justice agencies and government departments, local government, the legal profession, international development assistance agencies and overseas governments.

This course is designed to be undertaken, pre-application, to assist people pursuing a career in policing. The Certificate III in Police Studies is a course designed by TAFE SA in collaboration with the South Australia Police (SAPOL). The content and delivery methodologies further develop the skills, knowledge and attributes required to improve your prospects of recruitment by SAPOL and comprise:

- Law and justice in policing
- Effective workplace written & oral communication
- Contemporary social issues in policing
- Ethics in policing
- Workplace safety
- Using computers to produce police work documents
- Conflict management
- Customer service
- Working with diversity

The course is available:

- in a 10 week fulltime intensive option, or
- in a half or full year blended delivery option based on online and print-based learning materials with a limited attendance requirement.
